

King County Youth Advisory Council

The Council is a group of young people, ages 16-24, from across the Martin Luther King County who are advising and informing county-wide strategies, funding and practices. Meetings are scheduled every second Tuesday of the month, and includes learning, training and advising opportunities. This year, 2016, we have identified three top priorities: School Discipline, Teacher Cultural Competency, and Alternatives to Traditional Schools.

All Council members receive transportation support and $20 gift card for participating. Opportunities for internship and part-time jobs available (depends on current project).

School Discipline Coalition

This multi-disciplinary, multi-ethnic coalition is focused on addressing disproportionality in school discipline in South King County through racial equity lens and in a manner that’s driven by and response to the needs of communities most impacted. The coalition is staffed by TeamChild and OneAmerica.

A conversation with youth and young adults addressing the disproportionate discipline trends that impact black students and students of color in Seattle Public Schools

Mayor's Education Summit

The Mayor's Education Summit is a community process on how the City can help address important issues in our public schools. The summit process starts with gathering ideas and comments from residents at Community Conversations happening all over Seattle. This information will then be passed along to the Mayor and an Advisory Group to develop action steps.

All are invited to the Mayor's Education Summit where you'll hear a summary of the top ideas and suggestions gathered during the two-month-long community conversation process. The Mayor and other staff will present actions the City can take to reduce the education disparities among our children and close the achievement gap so all kids can succeed in school.

The Mayor's Education Summit will take place on Saturday, April 30 at Garfield Community Center (2323 E Cherry St., Seattle, WA 98122). More information at seattle.gov/educationsummit
